Leadership Development — It Ain't For Sissies

Join us as Donna shares her perspective and experiences as they relate to some of the complexities of providing meaningful leadership development to upcoming and seasoned leaders.

We all know how important leadership development is to the success of our leaders and their organizations. Yet providing meaningful training, coaching and/or consulting to leaders can present unique challenges to both the provider and the leader. Explore what it takes—from us as trainers and coaches, and from the leaders we work with—to design, gain support for, and participate in, training and coaching programs that can make a significant difference to an individual, his or her team, and ultimately their organization.

About Donna Rawady

Through her 21-year old consulting business, Donna Rawady has served clients in the corporate, financial, not-for-profit and health care environments as a group facilitator, training strategy consultant, business advisor—and since the mid-1990s—as an executive coach. Donna's primary goal is to serve her clients as a catalyst who sparks individual business leaders to higher levels of performance through measurable improvement of their leadership and communication skills.

In addition to serving her clients, Donna was an Instructor for 8 years for St. John Fisher College's Office of Professional Development. She served for 6 years on the Board of Directors for the Genesee Valley Chapter of the American Society for Training and Development, where she served as President in 1994. She has also served on the Executive Board of Directors for the Rochester Women's Network where she served as 2007 President.

Donna has maintained her GET REAL blog on leadership, coaching and life for over four years, and has had over 25 articles published. She also enjoys sharing her expertise by speaking at, and facilitating workshops for local and national conferences and professional organizations.
